Work of Removing Old Municipal Building To Begin SoonOn Thursday a representative of the bank and the Portsmouth Hogson Brothers, architects and builders, of New York city, arrived in this city where he delivered the structural plans of the new bank building to be erected on the site of the old city hall, to the New Hampshire National bank for approval.
Further details concerning the building will be handled by the directors as fast as possible and by the first of April the removal of the former municipal hall and police headquarters is expected to begin. None of the material of the old building will be used in connection with the bank structure.Two Banks on First Floor.
On the first floor the New Hamp-Trust and Guarantee company will be located, on each side of a large hallway leading from the main door to the stairway for the upper floors.
On the second and third floors will be a suite of fourteen offices excellently fitted. It has been reported that the bank people had plans for a hall or lodge rooms on the upper floor. This was given some consideration and the directors finally decided against it.
The New York firm which brought the plans and specifications will have complete charge of the work and will call for the bids from builders. Should the figures offered by the several contractors meet with the approval of Hogson Brothers, this firm will then erect the building.

MEYER LAUDS CRACK GUNNERY

Says Riddling of Old Battleship Texas Proves Navy World's PeerSecretary of the Navy Meyer is the firing showed immense satisfaction gratified over the results of which had been played through the the target practice on the old battleship from one side to the other many times. He described on one or two of them being sufficient to Thursday at the department in make the ship a total loss. The armaments language the effect of the of this vessel was unable to withstand the impact at the very great crisis the efficiency of the battleship range at which we fired, and the ship was a total loss after the first two shots were directed at her.As a witness of the unusual experiments, the secretary is convinced that the present system of practice and training in the navy is the best in the world. His great object since becoming secretary of the navy has been to attain high battle effectiveness. "The firing has given us a total loss very shortly after the firing began, and all hopes of the department has been provided on correct lines than the results of a dozen places where holes from our experiments. The ordinance has been stimulated to great extent under his administration.The excellent work his officers have been doing was splendidly demonstrated by the destruction wrought by the thoroughly modern shells and the thoroughly modern shells and explosives hurled at long range against the old battleship Texas.The results of the firing at the old Texas have furnished us with the most valuable information on the important questions that arise in the consideration of the modernization of the fleet for naval battle," said Secretary Meyer. "The firing has conclusively proven that our system of shooting is the best, and the total loss of the San Marcos has impressed every observer of the accuracy of fire and the destructive feature of our projectiles."As the practice was primarily for the education of the officers in establishing the range of range of distance of five to seven miles I intended to have the salvoes so placed that few projectiles would hit the vessel, so that we might use her again next year for spotting practice."Next all of the salvoes were fired so that they would fall at varying distances from the ship for the education of the officers, but in order to observe the fire of our projectiles on an actual armored ship a few of the salvoes were directed at the target itself and we got a great many hits from those salvoes."I noticed on one salvo that four 12-inch projectiles fell in a bunch, all of them striking the ship and creating dreadful havoc."The New Hampshire placed the salvoes anywhere she wanted, and when the secretary wished to have some hits on the conning tower and the turret armor in order to observe the effect, the ship had no trouble placing the shots at from 10,000 yards' range at just the point desired. A few projectiles were directed against the masts, so as to show what would happen to the exposed communication systems.

Paid the Fine and SnukAlbert Snook a well known inhab-

a fall out of everybody connected with the police court at Chelsea on Thursday.Snook has been putting the beef to an axe in the woods all winter and was paid off a few days ago, with a roll of bills that would choke a mule. He drifted into Boston and later to Chelsea, where he let loose and took the funny ones as fast as a lively union burkekeeper could draw from the wood. He gathered to himself a beautiful sum and the police found him at the station the police found a bank sewed up in the lining of his coat, from which Albert deposited a personal bail.He had not seen a razor all winter and carried a beard that completely covered his chest. Along with his face covering he had a fine growth of hair and his general appearance was against him.When Clerk of Court Joseph M.
Curry called the name of Albert Snook in court Thursday a handsome, clean-shaven, prosperous-looking young man stepped to the bar. Thinking there had been some misunderstanding, Clerk Curry continued to call, whereupon the young man pro-some minutes. He was fined five dollars, which he paid, all from the same big roll.

MIDSHIPMEN GRADUATE

ON JUNE 1

The Gates set by the superintendent of the naval academy for the graduation ceremonies of the first class of midshipmen, numbering 202 members, are May 29 to June 1. These young men will soon take their final examinations and if successful will receive their diplomas on June 1.

This is one of the largest classes ever graduated from the naval academy. All the young men will be graduated to days although after graduation to sea where they will spend two years before they complete the full six years course of naval education.

Among the 202 members New England is represented by 22. Massachusetts alone has ten of these. Connecticut is represented by four, New Hampshire by three, Maine by three, Vermont by one and Rhode Island by one. The Massachusetts members are: George D. May, Edward L. Hatch, Reuben N. Perley, Howard S. Peck, Moses A. Conant, William J. Butler, Charles A. Bailey, Frederick L. Taft and Thomas Baxter.

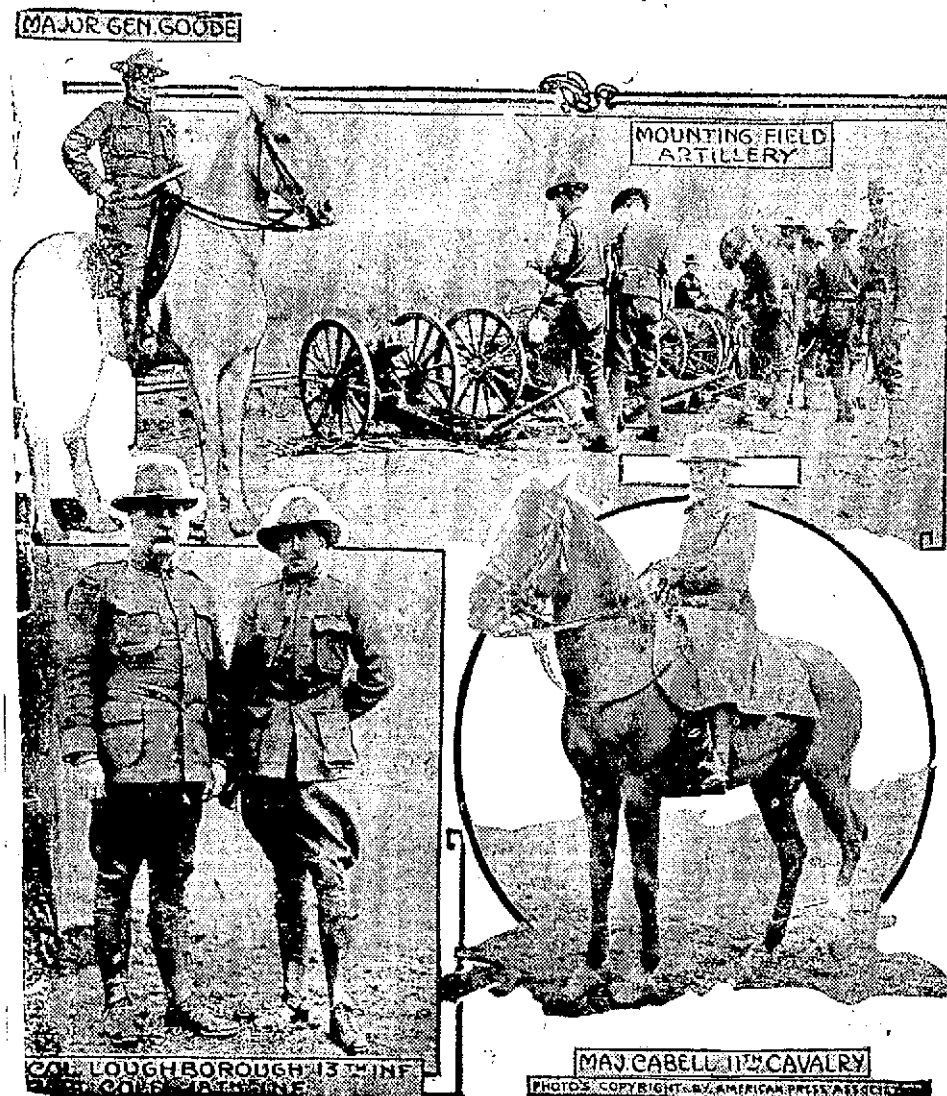

The Connecticut midshipmen are: Harold F. Bartlett, Philip S. Beach, Ralph C. Risley and John A. Fletcher.

The New Hampshire boys are: William D. Chandler, Jr., Everett D. Cuyahuta and Frederick S. Hatch. The latter is one of the star men at the academy ranking No. 2 among the 202 members. He has been found thoroughly proficient in all his studies.

The Maine boys are: Calvin H. Cobb, Ralph E. Bennett and Lewis Watson. The Maine boys and Vermont and Rhode Island members and Lambert Lamberton and Sherman M. Nason, respectively.

All of this class entered the naval academy in June, 1907.

If there be no further delays, Hell Gate, which is the name of the turbulent straits that connect Long Island Sound with the East river, will be spanned within the next three years by one of the largest and highest railway bridges of the world, which, with approaches, will be about two miles in length. It will serve to bring the South and Southwest and much of the mid-West into actual physical contact with New England.

From the architectural and engineering point of view, this bridge is to be one of the new wonders of the American continent. It is a national rather than a local undertaking, as the city of New York is to have no financial interest in it. The New England, the New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Pennsylvania are to be, through a subsidiary company, joint owners and operators of this bridge.

After some eight years of procrastination, due almost wholly to the commercial policies of New York city, whose board of aldermen succeeded in holding up the proposition, and the unwavering determination of the railway interests not to pay one dollar to facilitate the adoption of the franchise, work has actually begun upon this structure. The first spadeful of earth was turned last week upon the Long Island side of Hell Gate at a point where the initial pillar or support is to be built, and the excavation will be carried deep enough to make it possible to establish the pillar upon bed rock.

None of the difficulties encountered by the engineers in the construction of the suspension bridges between Manhattan and Brooklyn will be met in this new structure. Fortunately there are islands in the river upon which to construct piers presumably the cantilever principle is to be adopted.

The Vanderbilts may feel some regret that they did not accept the offer made by President A. J. Cassatt of the Pennsylvania to join in the purchase of the Long Island railroad a system which at that time seemed more valuable to the New York Central interests than to the Pennsylvania.

Excepting at Albany, and, in a trivial way at Poughkeepsie, where bridges span the Hudson, New England has been compelled to depend upon water communication for a considerable part of the railroad traffic originating or terminating in New England, or along the Pennsylvania system, in the coal districts, and in the South and Southwest. This has involved the towing of freight barges around Manhattan, an average distance of 14 miles. The Pennsylvania and the New Haven roads have also been compelled to utilize a railroad ferry, 2 miles long, between Jersey City and the New Haven's terminals upon the Harlem river for through passenger trains between New England and the South. The purchase by the Pennsylvania of the Long Island railroad was, in part, inspired by the realization that with a bridge over Hell Gate it would be possible to eliminate the long water haulage around New York city. The bridge, when completed, will have its western terminal at the New Haven station on the Harlem river, and its eastern terminus will connect, through the Long Island railroad, with the Pennsylvania by means of the latter's tunnels under the East river to the heart of New York and beyond.

The New Haven system and the Pennsylvania systems will then be in the closest possible physical and commercial alliance. There is, however, no danger that the Pennsylvania will ever secure the New Haven, although there may have been apprehensions that this may have been the purpose of Mr. Cassatt. The New Haven must, by the terms of the charter, remain in control of directors who are citizens of Connecticut.

How great a part the entire South is to play in developing the era of

BURROWS MUST BE LIGHTENED BEFORE 'FREEL'

Torpedo boat destroyer Burrows, Lieut. J. F. Hollweg commanding, is now a few feet from the foot of Cherry street, Newport, resting on a supposedly safe bottom of mud with even keel.

About 4 o'clock Thursday morning the Burrows was blown from Narragansett bay, where she lost her anchor in the gale to a dangerous distance from the rocks where she now anchors. Distress signals were fired notifying the naval craft and shipping generally that the Burrows was in distress.

By good work, officers and men were able to throw out the second anchor and check headway, saving the vessel from what was then believed would be fatal to the new craft. The Burrows had started for Hampton roads yesterday afternoon, but was forced to return because of the gale.

Arrangements are being made to take out 70,000 gallons of fuel oil to lighten the craft, which shows no apparent sign of damage. Every assistance is being given the Burrows by naval and other craft. Examinations fail to show the destroyer has been damaged.

Principal Harlan M. Dieboe of the Robinson seminary at Exeter the past year has been the most profitable in his term at the head of the institution, and it has also probably been the most prosperous in the history of the school. Much of the success is attributed to the seating of the classes, which was under the orders of the trustees. Two new instructors have been elected during the past year by the resignation of Ethel F. Littlefield and Edith M. Holmes, and these were Susan M. Bryant and Florie B. Smith.

The introduction of German for the youngest class has met with gratifying success. The school library has also been increased and a scholarship of $25 has been given by the same donor, who has previously given $50 to the most needy and worthy student. It has been advised that a thorough business course be instituted and that the ventilating facilities be improved. Also that efforts be made for a class in home economics instead of the course now given in sewing and cooking.

The report of Treasurer Albert N. Dow shows that there is a balance in the treasury of $339.86. The seminary will close its winter term to-night for a vacation of two weeks beginning on April 10. The board of trustees is composed of William Burdington, Henry W. Anderson, Arthur O. Fuller and William H. Folsom.

FIGHT A DUEL TO THE DEATH

Two Spinsters In Tragedy In Boston Rooming House

ONE KNOWN AS "HERMIT"

Renewal of Girlhood Friendship of Many Years Ago In Ireland Has Ghastly Conclusion—Coal Shovel Wielded on Head of Woman About Whom Nothing Is Known—Evidence of Desperate Struggle

Boston, March 24.—Two aged women, who had on Wednesday renewed their girlhood friendship, fought at 62 Hudson street and as a result one is dead at the City hospital morgue and the other is held at the house of detention on the charge of manslaughter.

The dead woman is Miss Bridget Moore, 69, address unknown. Her assailant and quondam hostess, now charged with manslaughter, is Miss Josephine Herron, 57, of 62 Hudson street.

Miss Moore was found in the back room of a two-room kitchen basement, her head battered almost to a pulp and her face and body horribly lacerated.

By her side stood the Herron woman and on the floor was a large coal shovel, the iron scoop so covered with hair and blood as to almost hide the iron.

Not much could be learned by the police as to just how the trouble between the women started. Neighbors told of hearing loud words and shrieks coming from the kitchen basement to the accompaniment of blows.

After Miss Moore had been taken to the City hospital, where she died last evening, Miss Herron told the police that she had been attacked with a knife and had used the shovel in self-defense. As evidence of the truth of her story she showed a ragged cut on her left forehead.

According to Mrs. Joseph Felice, the landlady of the Hudson street house, Miss Herron had for about a year occupied two basement rooms. She has been known by the neighbors as eccentric and kept so much to herself as to become known as "the hermit."

Wednesday afternoon she called on Mrs. Felice, accompanied by Miss Moore, whom she introduced as an old girlhood friend who came from the same place she was born in in Ireland. Mrs. Felice rented Miss Moore an attic room where she slept Wednesday night.

Late yesterday afternoon a tenant on the top floor heard high pitched voices, shrieks and the sounds of heavy blows coming from the basement and Patrolman O'Neill was called. He broke down the door, which was locked, and found Miss Moore lying in a pool of her own blood, her face and head horribly mangled. Miss Herron was in the room and the bloodstained coal shovel near her. The furniture was overturned and the rooms in a general state of disorder.

Calling the ambulance, O'Neill rushed Miss Moore to the City hospital, where she died shortly after being admitted. Miss Herron was locked up on the charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. On the death of Miss Moore this charge was changed to that of manslaughter.

Miss Herron has lived about the section for the past nine years and has been looked upon as an eccentric character. She had few acquaintances and lived a hermit's life. So far as is known, she never worked and this fact gave rise to the theory among the neighbors that she lived on an allowance furnished by wealthy relatives or friends. Of Miss Moore, her life before her appearance at the Hudson street house is a blank to the police.

A TAX ON SPINSTERS

All Over Twenty-Five May Have to Pay Five Dollars a Year

Madison, Wis., March 24.—A bill to tax $5 annually every unmarried woman over 25 years old and to create a "matrimonial commission," consisting of the governor, superintendent of public property and chief clerk of the assembly, was introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Hanger of Manitowish.

The matrimonial commission is charged with the duty of bringing together kindred souls when application is made for an affinity by any love-lorn maiden.

Proposed Duel Between Editors of Bee and Wasp Is Off

New Orleans, March 24.—The editors of the French papers, The Bee and The Wasp, are not to engage in mortal combat, according to a public statement made by M. DeBaroncel, editor of The Wasp.

"After consulting with friends and seeing no justification for blood, The Wasp declines the conflict as being without just cause," declared DeBaroncel. In consequence, Editor Capdeville of The Bee now says the proposed duel is off.

Dr. Washington's Assailant Will Soon Be Brought To Trial

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON WITH HEAD BANDAGED

New York, March 24.—The attack on Booker T. Washington, the celebrated negro educator, by Alfred H. Ulrich, a carpenter of 11-12 West Sixty-third street, has attracted national attention owing to the prominence of the negro. Dr. Washington, although not seriously hurt, is forced to go about with his head tightly bandaged. When Dr. Washington appeared in the West Side court to testify against Ulrich the proceedings were brief. Attorney James I. Moore, for the defendant, waived examination and gave bail for his appearance in special sessions. The charge was modified from felonious assault to simple assault. Ulrich will be tried in about two weeks.

SEWER AND FARM ARE SCIENTIFICALLY DISCUSSED

When New York city is now geographically described as a "city surmounted by sewage," and Chicago is sending her sewage down to St. Louis en masse, and St. Louis is depending upon its oxygenation, during the process of sewage treatment, the sewage, and on settling and filtration beds; and when New York's river and bay bottoms are estimated to hold sewage solids a foot or more thick, we certainly are confronted with a condition, not with a theory. The New York Sanitary Commission and some conservative and skillful engineers are giving the sewage problem much attention. If the sewage cannot indefinitely be sent down the bay at the rate of seven hundred million gallons daily, to be carried back and forth with every high tide, then where is the solution? When Liebig and Crookes hewell of the annual loss of millions of dollars of sewage sent into the sea in the form of being utilized upon the farms, describing it as the great organic economic of modern civilization, they did so with a good reason. Commissioners are sitting in session, studying how to increase our wheat yields, and when our average yield of England's 32 and Germany's 23 bushels per acre is needed for it along the lines of reducing the higher cost of living.

Intensive farming will solve many agricultural problems confronting us today. Instead of the 100-acre farm, the 20 or 40 acre farm fitted to the limit of intelligence, industry and fertilization, and yielding more crops than the larger area is to come.

The "wheat king" and "cattle king" have had their day, and the fifteen and twenty-acre farm has come to stay. It was the pocket handkerchief farmer who from his savings enabled the French Government to indemnify the emperor of Germany was indemnity in record time. The French peasant, who intensively cultivated his farm and got every ounce of produce the earth could be made to yield, saved the day financially for France.

The days of 100 and 600 acre wheat farms and an average yield of 13 bushels to the acre must cease and better conditions rule. The wheat farmer the laziest of all farmers must at last give his soil a square deal, rotate his crops and reforest his land. The ruling method of cropping wheat year after year from the gradually nitrogen-exhausted soil must cease. There is little virgin prairie land still to take up and begin cropping wheat de novo. His land must be rehabilitated the land he has.

The fact stands that from a nitrogen free soil successful wheat growing cannot be followed. Gluten, the muscle-building value in wheat, is a nitrogenous body, and it must draw from the nitrogen of the soil. The farmer's wheat crop becomes reduced in the ratio to the nitrogenous depletion of the land.

Let's demonstrate the effect of the sewer with the farm in an experiment made years ago in Jardin des Plantes. He manured two

RIVER AND HARBOR

The ferryboat General Knox, en route from Portland to New York, where she is to be used as an automobile ferry to Long Island, passed here Thursday afternoon under her own steam. She was coming up the coast crab-wise having difficulty from blowing off. Capt. W. H. Blizzard, formerly of the Gypsum King, was in command.

Tug Portsmouth went in commission this forenoon and left here for Portland with two barges, which will load lumber.

The little schooner Forest Maid, which has for many years been employed as a fisherman and confectioner the coast, will be seen no more in this vicinity. She has changed ownership and will hereafter sail under a British registry, having been purchased Thursday by J. F. Hill and others of Beaver Harbor, N. B.

Winfield M. Thompson, the yachting editor of the Boston Globe, has presented the Boothbay Register with a handsome new heading. There is nothing to good for the Register and its editor, and Mr. Thompson evidently realizes that fact.

The backward spring season is keeping the ice of the Swamscot river longer than the average. It will be some time yet before the river to Exeter is navigable. Usually by the 20th of March the ice is floating in the river with the tides, but as yet it has not broken up, and with the exception of a space in Newfields and a few places down river it can be crossed at most any point.

Barge No. 25, which has been discharging a cargo of coal at the navy yard has been towed below. Barge No. 15, which has been lying at the Consolidation Coal company docks, has been towed across the river to take out her cargo at the same place.

THE COUNTY RECORDS LACK PROPER ATTENTION

A correspondent of the Portland Argus suggests that the recent agitation for the removal of the court house from Alfred to some other location in York county and the present discussion among the members of the county legislative delegation relative to the enlargement of the existing condition may serve as a text to call attention to the contents of the courthouse and the manner in which the priceless records deposited there are suffering from want of proper care and protection.

Being the oldest among the Maine counties, York county has the oldest records of Maine, dating from 1636. The wills of York county to 1770 and the deeds to 1776 have been printed, partly at the expense of the state, thus placing valuable historical material beyond the risk of loss by fire or damage by handling. The court files, however, are in bundles. At every examination papers must be unfolded, handled and replaced and so some injury from every handling. The correspondent above referred to suggests that the state of Maine is a victim in the care and treatment of this vast collection of documents.

New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut have passed general laws governing the preservation of their early court records. In New Hampshire they are all assembled at Concord, classified, indexed, and placed in volumes. The same is to be done in the general court records of Massachusetts. Those interested in the Suffolk county court records in Boston, mounted, bound and indexed, at get an idea of what ought to be done at Alfred.

If York county cannot or will not provide for these necessary things, says the correspondent, "it seems to me that the state should step in and enforce this manifest duty, or do as New Hampshire has done, remove them to the capitol building and place them among the historical archives of the state, where the state historian can classify and arrange them as he has so well done with the documents covering the history of Maine since its admission to the Union."

"ENLISTMENT ORDER IS ONLY TO FILL VACANCIES"

Dispatches from the adjutant general at Washington were received at the Boston recruiting station of the United States army Thursday, ordering the recruiting officers to lay particular stress on the infantry regiments and Capt. Charles W. Farber of the Hanover street recruiting station was immediately besieged by those who thought the orders were caused by the mobilization of troops on the Mexican border.

"Well, if you can make a 'war scare' out of this telegram," said the captain to a reporter. "It's just one of the many orders we get to emphasize one particular branch of the service. Just normal strength, owing to the termination of enlistments, and I am told to get all the infantrymen I can to fill the vacancies. You look about the right size for—" and the reporter hastened away.

Calls for six or seven thousands recruits to bring the infantry regiments of the army mobilized in Texas and California up to full strength have been sent by the War Department to all the army recruiting stations in the country.

"I have been somewhat costive but Don's Regulax gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly." George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

DISCIPLINE

While Captain Austin M. Knight, U. S. N., was under court martial at Norfolk for alleged negligence in allowing the old target Puritan to sink in Hampton Roads after being riddled by the guns of the fleet, his wife died at Annapolis, where she underwent a surgical operation three days before her husband was put on trial.

From the first, many of Capt. Knight's fellow officers have not hesitated to say that the charge should never have been brought because the service to which his ship was subjected was so unusual that he could not be expected to know what would happen to her when the explosive was tried on her sides.

Even though he were found culpable, and fair minded unofficial judges scarcely admit the possibility of such a decision, it is not apparent to the layman that the exigencies of a court martial case of this sort in time of peace are such as to tear a husband away from his wife's death bed.

To some extent the service still savors, it seems, of the supposedly tabooed customs of the marines of the old school who swore by the cat-o-nine-tails and like gentle persuasive devices. Indeed the veriest tyrant of the wooden navy would scarce have devised a more ingenious or refined bit of cruelty than that practiced, whether intentionally or not, upon the doubly unfortunate commander of the Puritan.

Not without cause has the cry been raised that even in this glorious new navy of ours, discipline's rigidity and harshness occasionally overstep the bounds of reason. Let it not be said that the faculty of knowing and employing a happy medium is an impossible one.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

Mr. Carnegie's benefactions to Calicut total $183,250,000. Now shouldn't you think he would have evened it up in round numbers?

That Syrian peddler up in Franklin, Redwood Island, is a close second in one respect to the late Bud Doble. "The man with a catarrhal nose." Apropos of freeing the toll bridge, there are those cruel persons who, it seems from present indications, will have a chance to say "I toll ye so."

Discovered! The troops are being sent south to vanquish the newly discovered jointed worm which is destroying the cotton crop at Perchick, Tex.

The suffragettes appear to be gaining ground in Bedford. There a Greek maid was in court for throwing a hard wood stick at her "gentle man friend."

Lloyds has begun insuring seaside hotel proprietors against rain during the summer season. The next step will probably be to insure the summer girl's bathing suit against salt water.

The Oklahoma woman who has thirteen sons, all under five years of age, probably not only has all her hands full most of the time and most of her hands full all of the time, but all of her hands full all of the time.

Papers were signed in New York Wednesday for the incorporation of the New York Scottish Highlanders whose purpose shall be "to perpetuate and encourage the wearing of the Highland costume, to foster recollections of Scottish pipe music, literature, history and tradition and to an-

the Scotchmen and their descendants." Is the harem skirt to be arrested in mid-career, to die an inglorious death?

A man has been saved from drowning by a cork leg in Boston, but that doesn't mean that this is a wholly desirable lifesaving appliance.

On the part of the Navy Department, that was perhaps a rather doubtful compliment to the people of San Marcos, Texas,—changing the old battleship Texas' name to that of their city and then promptly taking her out and turning her into a junk heap.

Plates at the recent Winter Jamming Bryan dinner were only $1 each, notwithstanding that a dollar does not go anywhere near so far as it did back in the middle '90s, says the Christian Science Monitor. Fortunately for our pocketbooks, however, the ratio is not yet 16 to 1.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Potato Growers' Combine. Aroostook potato growers may organize, it is said, in order to circumvent potato speculators and also to investigate the Swedish system of Swedish system of manufacturing from the tubers a distilled liquid used in the operation of automobiles, so as to make a profit from their crops in off seasons. This is the news from Maine, and according to the accounts, some farmers there have come to look upon potato speculators as working against the growers' interests by keeping prices down generally so that the producer loses money on his crops. Matters apparently have reached an acute stage. But the Aroostook county farmer has carefully weighed the situation and practically decided upon the means that he will adopt in order to rectify what he considers a wrong.

While sympathy must go out to any worthy potato grower who finds his labor counting for naught monetarily, whatever organization Aroostook farmers may form will utilize, it is hoped, only pacific means of altering price prospects. The speculator sure is not alone to blame for the situation of which they complain. No one set of men, probably, has exerted influence enough either to raise or to depress quotations on potatoes in Maine's largest county at will. It is quite likely that some of the farmers themselves have not been disinclined to measure wits with speculators and cut prices frequently in order to effect trades. But that is neither here nor there; if Aroostook county potatoes to growers have a common interest, and the fame of their potatoes would make it appear so, there should be no insurmountable difficulty in reaching an understanding whereby they should work together to maintain prices that are fair, alike to themselves and the public. By that arrangement a satisfactory margin of profit might be allowed, also, to the man who buys farmer and sells to the wholesaler or retail merchant.

Probably the whole situation results from the mutual distrust and the absence of any attempt by either the farmer or the speculator to come to a clear understanding. Let the growers organize without thought of "doping" coercive tactics, and possibly they could deal with the buyers in a manner acceptable to both parties. Such an organization, by careful management, might go far to maintain amicable relations between grower, buyer and ultimate consumer.—Shirley Science Monitor.

Postoffices and Sunday.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock has issued an order discontinuing the practice of delivering mail through the carriers' window on Sunday. Obviously the change will do away with a large amount of work which has been done on Sunday, and in so far as commendable. On the other hand, however, the order is certain to work not a little of inevitable hardship. For the great mass of mail it does not matter that it should wait from Saturday night until Monday morning for delivery, but there are letters in which the case is entirely different. It does not require a vivid imagination to conceive of an important letter, bearing news, it may be, of the approaching death of a friend or relative, which reaches the postoffice to which it is directed too late to be delivered on Saturday afternoon. If it were expedient or perhaps more correctly directed, it could be secured during the hours on which the post-office was open Sunday under the old arrangement. Under the new or-

A TIMELY TOPIC

AMOS W. BUTLER, Pres. American Prison Asso., in the Survey.

OUR LAW MADE LEISURE CLASS.

We have in this country a large leisure class, a class that is compelled to live in idleness, while the rest of the population supports them. Practically all the inmates of our county jails are idle. That is the reward given those who often intentionally violate our laws. There is no more food bolt upon our civilization than this.

So we in a faint way estimate the possibilities of the employment of certain prisoners in many lines of conservation of the water, the land and the forest? How great the results may be in improving our lands, increasing our crops, preserving or replacing our forests, or our benefits by good roads, we cannot comprehend.

In this we should not have to work in the dark. In one state after another practical experience has been gained. Convicts crush stone for roads in Illinois, California, Nevada and Utah, build roads in California, Virginia, Louisiana and Washington. In Washington they cut away the heavy forest; in Massachusetts they are engaged in reclaiming the land, in New Jersey in clearing the soil; in Rhode Island in removing boulders from productive earth; in Minnesota and Louisiana in draining the land; in Ohio, Kansas and California in improving the farms. At Michigan City, Indiana, the prisoners reclaimed a tract of swamp land among the sand dunes. The Southern states have taken the lead, as their favorable climates makes possible, in the employment of prisoners, both upon public roads and state terial interests of regular summer visitors, according to the Maine practice, which obviously solves a problem which agitates many resorts the attractions of which develop a transient population in wealth and enterprise and some-times in numbers outclassing the indigenous. The time usually arrives when some alien residents demand some votes in the expenditure of the money they are required to contribute to the local funds. It is not always the case that the taxes are distributed so as not to please the summer folk. If the situation becomes desperate numbers of the latter take up a legal residence in order to have a hand in the government. By the device of improvement associations, to be sure, much public work is accomplished exactly as those most interested would have it. But the working of this voluntary arrangement, subject as it must be to a measure of responsibility to the established local authority, leaves much to be desired. From such conditions affecting the Pier section of the town of South Kingston was evoked first the district and then the town of Narragansett; while with the general development of the latter conflict is renewed occasionally between the summer people and the all-the-year-around electorate.

Clothed with ample power of local option, the material concerns, such as the Maine plan affords, a status is created which ought to work admirably in the interests of a summer colony and without prejudice to the natives. An obstacle might perhaps be found in some constitutions. In general is the insistence on legal residence in a state as the first qualification for the exercise of the voting privilege in any matter.—Providence Journal.

NEW DELAY IN THE EDDY CASE

The decision of the full branch of the Massachusetts supreme court on Thursday that the attorney general must be brought into the case as a party has further postponed the suit of Steven A. Chase and others of the Christian Science board of directors against Adah H. Dickey and others to test the validity of the testamentary gifts of Mary Baker G. Eddy of the Christian Science church.

E. A. Whitman, counsel for the plaintiff was presenting his argument when Judge Bailey inquired if the attorney general was not a necessary party to the suit. Chief Justice Taft then asked if in view of the plaintiff's claim that the gift was a valid charitable gift made by Mrs. Eddy to promote Christian Science as taught by her, the attorney general should not necessarily intervene in behalf of the public to decide what should be done in the administration of the gift.

Counsel stated to the court that the attorney general's views were known and it was not thought necessary to bring him in. A conference of the justices followed, with the result that it was stated that the attorney general should come in on his own responsibility, appear as counsel on the record, and state whether he agreed to be heard or would insist that the gift was in violation of the statute.

The court entered that the reservation of the case by the single justice be discharged, and the case will go back to the Suffolk supreme court before a single judge. The attorney general may there appear voluntarily or he will have to be called in as a party. He will be required to file an answer and express his official attitude in regard to the Eddy gift. The court will not sit later than March 31.

GRACE BRYAN, YOUNGEST DAUGHTER OF W. J. BRYAN WILL WED NEXT JUNE

Lincoln, Neb., March 24.—Miss Grace Dwyer Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Bryan, will be married early in June to Richard L. Hargreaves, a business man of Lincoln. Announcement of the engagement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. The attachment of the young couple is of long standing and has met the approval of their families. Both were born in Lincoln and were schoolmates together. Grace Bryan is the youngest of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. Mr. Hargreaves is twenty-two years old, and his bride to be is twenty.

BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

No more home cooking, says a Winchester woman, suffragist, who will be a year, by Beacon Hill. Boston, New England hardware folk and Boston hardware folk, great decorative arts exhibition interests eastern Massachusetts, cheerful conversation of a restaurant table.

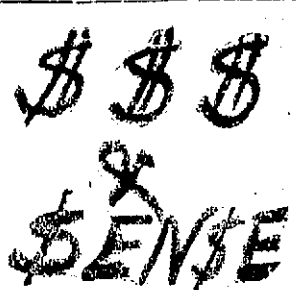

March 24.—A town full of fun for the observant spectator. A young couple entered one of the expensive "home dining rooms" for a dinner for a quarter, which, in the educational district, found themselves somewhat embarrassed by the necessity of sitting at the same table with a stranger. The young man, evidently recently enrolled at a medical school, did his best to keep conversation flowing smoothly and to put the girl at her ease. "Say, don't you want to come to see me Saturday?" he asked as the bill was served. The girl looked slightly dubious, but asked politely that kind of operations they usually performed. "Oh, we have all sorts, out mostly appendicitis on Saturday. Come on up some time." His companion was warmly appreciative of the invitation and applied herself to her lunch rather half heartedly. After a pause which the young man seemed to find uncomfortable he exclaimed: "Say, what do you think of a man being able to eat without any stomach? Fast, they say, but not out!" The girl swallowed hard and murmured something to the effect that he probably couldn't eat very much. Thus encouraged the youth of medical inclination launched forth on a detailed and graphic explanation of the intricacies of the operation and other kindred subjects, which lasted throughout the fish, entree, meat, salad, dessert, and coffee stages of the lunch.

A sumptuous Italian festa to follow the equally sumptuous retrospective exhibition of the decorative arts which closes March 23, is announced by the public spirited Copley Society of Boston. The festa, in celebration of St. George's day will take place in Copley Hall, Wednesday evening, March 24. Like the decorative arts exhibition which has attracted club women, teachers, students and others from every part of eastern New England, this event will interest a wide area. The exhibition now on has been well attended week days and Sundays, though as usual, a considerable section of the public will be applying for admission for a week or more after it has been closed and the treasures of old Boston have been dispersed to the home of the owners who munificently lent them for the occasion.

Wait another year, says to the suffragists the Massachusetts committee on constitutional amendments. The legislature may or may not affirm their judgement, but at least their recommendation is a little better than "leave to withhold." Meanwhile the Heb continues to be a seething kettle of suffragism. There's a spirited suffrage play that is quite the thing, as proved by its presentation at an "At Home and Dramatic Entertainment at 585 Boylston street, Mar. 31. A real drama of political quality written by Mrs. Bertha Papadimitriou, and entitled "The First Thing That Could Have Happened." Mrs. Emily M. Bishop at a private residence in the Back Bay lectured on dramatic scenes for the United States senate, an address said to be replete with argumentative material for the suffrage cause. Noddy's Island, otherwise known as East Boston, is to be stirred to the nether depths of the harbor with a mass meeting at which former governor John L. Bates, a resident of the island, will be a principal speaker. Organization of equal suffrage clubs throughout Massachusetts goes on apace. New Bedford and Waltham have just acquired such associations; others are in immediate prospect. Several of the Bay State Suffragists are working energetically to get as much accomplished as possible before splitting for the other side where they will study English suffrage methods, and perhaps take a little part in them. The Springfield, in short, may already be at-feeling business activities but its germs have not yet invaded the suffrage camp in Copley square.

Winchester a pretty suburb of greater Boston, is a scour over the latest plan for abolishing old maids, divorcees and dishwashing, along with several other undesirable elements of our civilization. Mrs. Herman Dudley Murphy, wife of the well known artist, and an active worker in several branches of social improvement work has devised a scheme whereby there shall be no more washing of dishes, no more dish washing, no more red mending and the like. The movement also shall be received from the outside and arranged to do so at itself to away care for her children and a more home attractive and study larger with which. The plan is to have a community as a dishonored where meals shall be prepared and served by a select group of women who will be paid for their services. The cost is offset many times by the profits the extra sales will create. NOW is the time to get ready for the spring and summer nights.

Mr. Merchant, you know that pure white lead is a prime feature of a store—that it enables goods to be shown properly and that it attracts attention to them.

Why not therefore have your establishments adequately lighted—why not have your show window looking so as to attract the attention of everyone passing by, by having plenty of pure white light?

The cost is offset many times by the profits the extra sales will create.

TWO YEARS' BUDGET THREE MILLION

Report of Expenses Made—Senate Again Kills Income Tax Resolu- tion—Many Long Debates.

In the house Thursday morning the committee on appropriations reported the budget bill for 1912 and 1913. This is for the running expenses of the state for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1912, a total of $1,217,671.47, and for the next year $1,753,671.47. These amounts are larger than have been the bills in the past few years, as provision is made for the new high-salaried commissions created this year, for increases in salaries of state, superintendent of public instruction and other officials. The bill also provides $135,000 for a constitutional convention and $137,000 for the next legislature. The new child labor bill costs $6500, and the bounty bills will be a big drain on the treasury. The fish and game commission is allowed $8500 for a detective fund, but this is taken from the $76,000 in the treasury paid in by hunters and fishermen.

There was a long debate in the house over house bill No. 391, which provides for the distribution of money received from automobile fees and fines. The judiciary committee reported the bill with amendments, but Towle of Northwood wanted to amend it differently by making the bill so drawn that 65 percent of the automobile fund should be used on the trunk lines of the state highway system and 35 percent on other roads receiving state aid, and that this latter money should be apportioned on a mileage basis and paid over to the towns on the first of January of each year. Mr. Towle claimed that he had been used unfairly by the judiciary committee, and charged Chairman Couch personally with breach of faith. The two had it back and forth until the speaker called the Northwood gentleman to order and he offered an apology. The house was with him, however, for when he moved a little later that the bill be referred to the committee on public improvements, to be put in proper shape, the motion was carried by a heavy vote. As it was claimed that this bill came in an unsatisfactory manner from the judiciary committee, its reference to another committee was taken as a slap to the former.

Another debate occurred over house bill 460, which aimed to repeal the law which now distributes a portion of the railroad and savings bank tax among the cities and towns. The majority of the committee on ways and means reported the bill backpedder, while Stevens of Landaff and Davis of Winchester reported that the bill ought to pass with an amendment providing that the savings bank tax should go to the towns, but that the railroad tax should be held by the state. Stevens led the minority in the debate, and was supported by Hobbs of Wolfboro, Sibley of Manchester and Fitch of Sunapee. He was opposed by Smith of Peterborough, Ellwell of Exeter and Aborn of Concord. While the debate was in progress Stoddard of Portsmouth moved the previous question. This move after the speaker announced that hereafter when a motion is made to reconsider whether it is seconded. He did so in this instance. O'Neill of Walpole demanded a roll call on the question, saying he protested against such tactics. He declared that motion should only be made as a last resort in preliminary procedure to prevent dilatory tactics and filibustering. The speaker replied that he ruled as he did because certain members had made it a practice to rise when the previous question was moved, as if they intended to second the motion, but when recognized would take the floor for debate, and as the rules required that a motion for the previous question must be put when demanded by three members, he had ruled as he did. To do otherwise, he said, would be to take unlimited power upon himself.

With matters thus explained Mr. O'Neill withdrew his demand for a roll call and a division was taken. It resulted 200 to 93 in favor of closing the debate. Mr. Stevens' motion to substitute the minority report was then defeated, and the bill itself was killed by a heavy vote.

The house adopted a resolution providing that all bills in the hands of committees must be reported not later than Thursday of next week. Mr. Pickard, author of the resolution, stated that the committee chairman had told him this was possible. This resolution points to adjournment the week following.

The appropriations committee reported inexpedient on the two bills for normal schools at Nashua and Berlin, and the reports were accepted without opposition.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Grew a Full Growth of Hair on a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it as long as I can, as I notice a constant increase.

A lively hearing took place before the house committee on agriculture and private subscriptions, sent four members of the committee on the bill to redistrict Manchester. Messrs. Wagner and Perkins favored the bill, while Messrs. Flynn, McLean and Davis opposed it. All except Mr. Flynn are republicans, and Mr. McLean is a member of the state republican committee. Many more witnesses were waiting to be heard when adjournment was taken until next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

According to a statement given on Thursday, President Charles S. Mellen of the Boston and Maine railroad has asked the special committee of the New Hampshire legislature to permit all rates now in force to stand, pending a full investigation by the proposed public service commission. If the committee agrees he will promise to raise no rates but he objects to a provision that shippers paying rates now illegal shall be entitled to recover if investigation shows them to be unreasonable as well. If the committee insists on this latter point, then Mr. Mellen wants the right of appeal to the courts of, during the investigation, the public service commission orders the reduction of any rates. It was stated Thursday that the conference with Mr. Mellen resulted in nothing in the way of an agreement.

For the second time Thursday the senate refused to ratify the 16th amendment to the federal constitution authorizing congress to impose an income tax. A resolution embodying such ratification passed the house weeks ago and was killed in the senate. Then the governor in a special message rebuked the senate for its action, and the house put through another resolution just like the first, another resolution just like the first, with a view of giving the senate another chance to ratify the amendment to record a second time.

It reached the senate Thursday morning and was not even read. As soon as its title was announced Senator Doane remarked that this was a measure which had already been taken care of, and moved its indefinite postponement. His motion was carried 14 to 8.

Some of the senators showed their opposition to the governor Wednesday afternoon when they quietly passed the word among themselves to refrain from attending his public reception. They called it a "boycott." As far as was noticed, but ten senators attended the reception. These were classified by one of their number as follows: Five progressives, two standpatters and three democrats.

In a rather busy session on Thursday morning the senate passed the hedgehog bounty bill, which it is estimated will cost the state at least $15,000. The senate also passed a bill repealing those sections of the fish and game law which allow the commissioners to grant permits to so-called scientists to kill songbirds and destroy their eggs. The commissioners desire this change in the law. They say every bird in the state has been classified and described in books of natural history, and that the killing of birds for examination by so-called scientists and instructors is wicked.

FARMERS' ONE WEEK COURSE AT DURHAM

At the third annual farmers' one-week course offered by the New Hampshire college at Durham, the attendance was larger than in either of the previous years, for the total enrollment reached 228. Every county in the state was represented by the visitors, and some towns sent delegations of from four to eight people.

An instance of the interest which certain communities are taking in the course, Fruitdale grange of Mason, Peterboro; second, Dixville Notch Corporation, Dixville Notch.

The New Hampshire Potato Growers association, at its annual meeting in connection with the farmers' one-week course, elected the following officers: President, D. T. Atwood, Plymouth; vice president, D. C. Westgate, Plainfield; secretary, J. J. Gardner, Durham; treasurer, D. A. Watson, Durham; executive committee, W. P. Hannum of Spofford, George W. Yeaton of Rollinsford and I. S. Littlefield of New London.

At the business meeting which followed it was decided to cooperate in the purchase of chemicals for home mixing of fertilizers and also for spray materials. A number of the members reported growing from 10 to 25 acres last year with the prospect of increasing the acreage this year.

PURITA'S PLEA TO SHYLOCK

Recital Results in Ten-Fold Verdict in an Omaha Court

Omaha, March 24.—However small an effect the plea of Purita had upon Shylock, that plea was a verdict in an Omaha court, and so powerful an effect did it have upon the jury that that body returned a verdict giving the defendant ten times as much damages as the plaintiff had asked for himself.

COTTAGE LOOTING IS WIDESPREAD

There is some suspicion that the men implicated in the cottage breakers about this matter, may know something about the cottage looting that has been discovered at York and Ogunquit. In fact the indications are that all along the coast there has been considerable work of this kind done this past winter.

One of the worst offenders from thieves was Mrs. Geo. Conarroe of old Head Cliff, where it has been discovered that the thieves looted the cottage and what they did not carry away they destroyed.

The work resembles that done by the two men now at the local jail, awaiting the action of the grand jury, for work in this section.

Madame X.
The company which is to present the big melodrama, Madame X, here is the same one which has been appearing at the Bijou Theatre, Boston, all winter and which has established there the long record for a serious drama in Boston. It is the original New York cast of Madame X which has been called the great drama in twenty years. The sponsor, Henry W. Savage, has never failed to attract attention upon the public and the extraordinary degree of respectability enjoyed by this manager's productions is doubtless due to this fact. Dorothy Donnelly will be seen in the title role and she is supported by one of the strongest dramatic ensembles in many years, numbering over one hundred people.

"The Lottery Man."

Cyril Scott and the players associated with him during the engagement of "The Lottery Man," at the Bijou Theatre, New York, comes to this theatre Saturday, April 1, when the Messrs. Schubert offer this most entertaining of comedies for the first time out of Manhattan. The play is by Rida Johnson Young, author of "Brown of Harvard," "Glorious Boy," "Just One of the Boys," and other successes, and it has been staged by Miss Edith Ellis, author of "Mary Jane's Pa."

"The Lottery Man" was among the first of the New York successes of the past season. The Messrs. Schubert, although they manage fourteen theatres in New York, were unable to place the comedy in one of their own houses so an arrangement was made with the management of the Bijou Theatre, where "The Lottery Man" was shown here. Failure after failure has been seen at the Bijou when suddenly attention was attracted to the new arrival. The "lottery man" soon spoke of the play as having lifted the hoodoo which had hung over the Bijou for so long a time. In fact the entire engagement was started more or less cautiously, gradually broadening into one of the most successful runs of the season.

The basis of the plot is extraordinary for its straightforwardness and originality as well as the angle at which the author has treated it. A reporter persuades his paper to conduct a lottery with himself as the prize. The lucky coupon is won by an old maid who claims the spoils of battle. It is discovered, however, that she has stolen the ticket, whereupon she is threatened with arrest. Interest is added to the pursuit by the fact that the reporter falls in love with a young girl and is, naturally, anxious to capture the ticket himself.

The New York Hippodrome.

The Messrs. Schubert received today the following letter from Charles T. Work, the brother of Henry Clay Work, who was the composer of the war song, "Marching Through Georgia," which is the title of Carroll Fleming's new spectacle of plantation life lately put on at the Hippodrome:

66 Lexington Ave.,
Brooklyn, March 21st.
Messrs. Lee and J. J. Schubert:

Gentlemen—My attention has been drawn to your new production, "Marching Through Georgia" and it may interest you to know that my brother Henry Clay Work was the composer of (I may say) that immortal melody, the title of which you use, and the melody of which your orchestra renders with such power.

I have not had the opportunity to witness the production as yet, but have sent my friends to see it and they are loud in their praise. I am the last surviving member of the family, have owned copyrights and collected royalty ever since my brother's death in 1881 at Hartford, Conn., where a fine memorial was lately erected in his honor with unusual civic ceremonies and where I was invited to unveil the same. Permit me to say, I feel justly proud of the ability and patriotism of my late brother and I desire to extend to you my deep appreciation of your skill and forethought in this production that will help perpetuate the most patriotic and stirring National Melody. "Marching Through Georgia" is played all over the world, even in Far India, where the words have no significance, but the stirring strains endure the centuries.

Again expressing my sincere appreciation of your efforts and success in this matter, I beg to subscribe myself,

Most sincerely yours,

(Signed) Chas. T. Work.

The Messrs. Schubert have invited Mr. Work to occupy a box at the Hippodrome for Monday evening next to witness the new spectacle.

Three Twins.

Jos. M. Gaites' "Three Twins"—that greatest success America has ever known—a musical comedy by Charles Dickson, Otto Hauerbach and Karl Hirschman will be seen here soon. The play is based on that popular old farce "Innocent" and carries a clear and logical story. All the complications of the piece center around twin brothers and a third twin—Tom Stanhope, having assumed the disguise to win the girl he loves—Kate Armitage who is a companion to his father's ward.

The first act is a summer hotel. The second act shows "visiting day" at a Sanatorium, and with the pretty girls of the chorus as nurses and attendants the "daffy house" does not appear to be the undesirable place that most people are inclined to regard it. Dr. Siegfried Hartman, a German specialist in charge of the Sanatorium, is an amusing character and General Schanope a martyr to dyspepsia and the father of Tom is unique. While other characters adding to the enjoyment of the piece are the "laughing girl" and the "cheerful weeper."

Mr. Gaites had employed a strong company for the play headed by that intangible star Clifton Crawford.

The scenic production is elaborate and a number of novel electrical and mechanical effects are introduced, including the "faceograph," the huge "airship swing," the most popular and catchy songs are "Yama Yama Man," "Cuddle up a Little Closer" and "The Hypnotic Kiss."

AMATEUR WIRELESS
OUTFITS INTERFERED

The experience of Admiral Schroeder's battleship fleet Tuesday in trying to communicate to the navy department the results of the firing by the New Hampshire upon the San Marcos, as the test progressed, may have the effect to renew the efforts of the army and navy officers to regulate the use of the wireless system of telegraphy.

Not a message could be got through to Washington by Admiral Schroeder although the distance from the fleet to the navy yard wireless receiving plant here is only about 60 or 70 miles. This was principally owing to the "interference" of the many private wireless outfits which are being operated by individuals in this vicinity.

The incident demonstrates clearly to the minds of the naval experts the necessity for absolute government control over all such plants in time of war, for they can easily conceive of a naval battle being fought in Chesapeake bay of which the navy department should be advised.

FIFTEEN TON ELM TO BE REMOVED

A large elm tree which for the last 50 years has stood on the J. Montgomery Sears estate at Beacon and Kent streets, Brookline, is being prepared for transplanting to a spot 40 feet from that which it now occupies. It is about 45 feet in height, has a diameter at its base of seven feet and weighs about 15 tons.

David Cosgrove of Malden, an expert on transplanting, who has charge of the work, says that the tree is the largest he has ever tried to move. A corps of men has been at work for a week felling the roots, and Monday the actual transfer will take place. For this 42 heavy jacks will be used. The estate was purchased recently by Franklin R. Webber, who intends to erect a house where the tree stands. The elm is such a magnificent specimen that Mr. Webber decided to undertake the transplanting to another portion of his grounds.

RUSH ORDERS ON RECRUITING

"Keep Open Night and Day" Wired Stations--Rebels Uneasy at Juarez.

Boston, March 23. The following dispatch from the adjutant general of the U. S. army to the various recruiting stations throughout the country caused a commotion, and has been interpreted as a hurry up order.

Washington, March 23:

"Large number of infantry recruits required. Make special efforts accordingly. By order of adjutant general."

"Alford, adjutant general." Capt. C. W. Farber of the local recruiting station of Danvers street said today: "Owing to the expiration of terms of enlistment and other reasons thoroughly understood in the service, we find at certain periods a shortening in some of the branches of the service, and this dispatch was sent out informing us of that fact. We interpret it to mean that the peace footing of the service shall be maintained. It means that the places of the men going out of the army for various reasons shall be filled and it must not in any way be taken to mean that we are recruiting for any emergency likely to occur."

"We have been getting dispatches of the same kind ever since this station was established, and will continue to receive them as long as the army exists, whenever occasion requires."

TWO DISPATCHES RECEIVED

Chicago, March 23.—Two telegrams from the war department in Washington were received at the headquarters of the Chicago recruiting stations yesterday urging that the officers take immediate steps to enlist all possible recruits promptly.

The first telegram read as follows: "Large number of infantry recruits required. Make special efforts accordingly. By order of adjutant general."

"Alford, Adj. Gen."

Hardly had the telephone order been communicated when a second telegram came from the adjutant general's office declaring the call urgent and advising that the stations be kept open day and night if necessary.

"Use every effort to procure recruits for the infantry without delay. Urgent. If necessary open day and night."

Lieut. Col. Benjamin Alford, U. S. A., is an adjutant general serving under the adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Ainsworth.

ON OUTLOOK FOR REBELS

Juarez, Mex., March 23, via El Paso, Tex.—The Mexican troops that garrison Juarez showed renewed activity today. More sand bags were piled along the edges of the flat roofs to be used as breastworks in case of attack, special attention being given to the municipal buildings on the Plaza, which now afford ample protection against anything except artillery fire.

Lookouts posted on the tower of the old mission constantly watch the mountains to the south and west for signs of the approach of the insurgents.

It is reported that bands of insurgents have been seen from the rooftops and great uneasiness is felt in the town, which is defended by 450 artillerymen and a squadron of cavalry 150 strong. Noncombatants, however, will be fairly well sheltered in the above houses in case of attack. Their thick walls are proof against rifle fire, but offer little protection against field guns.

Gen. Navarro sent out a troop of cavalry today to intercept a band of insurgents reported to be crossing the river from the American side, a few miles east of here.

REBELS NEAR HERMOISILLO

Angua Prieta, Sonora, Mexico, March 23, via Douglas, Ariz.—John

Cabral, the young insurgent leader of Cananea, with a force of 225 men, yesterday reached Carbo, a Southern Pacific railway station northeast of Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora. It is not believed here that Hermosillo is in immediate danger of assault by the rebels.

Gen. Lorenzo Torres has returned from Torin with nearly 1000 men which, added to the 300 garrisoning the city, gives an adequate force for the protection of the capital.

SAYS DIAZ MUST STEP DOWN

New Orleans, March 23.—"President Diaz must step down before peace can come to Mexico."

This is the declaration of Capt. Sherborne J. Hopkins of Washington, attorney for the Madero insurgents, who sailed from New Orleans late yesterday for Guatemala City, for a consultation with President Cabrera on matters concerning that government.

Capt. Hopkins emphatically denied the report that American interests are financing the Mexican revolt.

"The Madero family alone is furnishing the money for the revolution," he said. "Hundreds of thousands have been expended by Gustave Madero and his brother, Francisco J. Madero, already and they stand ready to impoverish themselves to bring about the fall of the Diaz ring in Mexico. They were wise enough to transfer their immense fortune to foreign corporations before they embarked in the revolution."

"Diaz has no power, and his boasted army could hardly cope with a Central American force."

"Counting all his forces, he has not 16,000 men that he can depend upon. The army is honeycombed with sedition, and there is no such thing as a volunteer force upon which he can call. The common people do not like Limantour any more than Diaz, and it will be impossible for the minister of finance to try to bring about peace."

MAC VEAGH APPROVES
NEW CUSTOMS RULING

Secretary MacVeagh has approved a new customs ruling which the treasury department expects will do much to reduce the troubles of returning tourists from Europe and will minimize attempts to smuggle personal belongings.

Under the law every American returning from abroad is entitled to bring in free $100 worth of personal belongings. The customs rulings hitherto have been susceptible of elastic interpretation and many troublesome incidents have arisen. The new ruling makes specific announcement of what articles a returning American may bring free to the value of $100, as follows: Clothing, toilet articles, jewelry, personal ornament, cameras, fishing tackle, guns, musical instruments, steamer rugs, toys, shawls, valises and trunks.

These things will be considered dutiable: Household goods, books, pictures, table ware, table and bed linen and similar articles unless used by the owner a year abroad. Goods in the piece will have to pay duty, as will presents for other persons or articles of any nature for sale.

Of so-called expatriated Americans, proof will be required that they have abandoned their homes in the United States and have taken bona fide residences abroad. Nonresidents of the United States, however, may bring in personal effects for their own use, comfort or convenience, or articles of adornment without limit of valuation under the usual regulations.

The lecture on "Clean Journalism" under the auspices of the Christian Science society, in this city next Monday evening, will be held at the same time all over New England. The same lecture is to be read at all of the meetings.

The Roosevelt Dam, Arizona, And the Men Who Erected It

Phoenix, Ariz., March 21.—This dam, making possible the so called "Salt river project," dedicated by ex-President Roosevelt, is one of the wonderful engineering achievements of the age. Its height is 289 feet, on the top it is 1,080 feet long, and at the bottom it is 170 feet thick. A twenty-six story building which covered an entire city block would not fill the space occupied by this mass of masonry. The dam is located in a canyon in Arizona, sixty-two miles from the nearest railroad. The irrigation canals supplied by the water from this dam will cover 190,000 acres of fine land, and by pumping with electric power an additional 50,000 acres will be irrigated. The dam cost the government $9,000,000, and about 6,000 Apache Indians were employed for several years as laborers. The government holds a mortgage on all the land which will be watered, and in ten years the purchasers of the land will repay the government. The Salt river valley is semitropical in climate; its products are singularly like those of Egypt. Here the orange, lemon, lime, palm, fig and date trees flourish, also almonds, peaches, cherries and other fruits in abundance. Alfalfa, corn, oats, barley and wheat yield enormous crops. The men who directed the erection of the dam are P. H. Newell, chief of the reclamation service; Arthur Powell Davis, chief engineer, and Louis C. Hill, supervising engineer.

OBSERVE 27th ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

In their home on Rogers street Mr.
and Mrs. Jeremiah L. Godfrey on Thursday quietly observed the twenty-seventh anniversary of their wedding. At night their children grouped around the dinner table and united with them in the simple observance. The children brought them this commemorative of the anniversary.

Mr. Godfrey is a native of Hampton and a Civil War veteran. He was born in 1844, and when 18 years old enlisted in Company I, Fifteenth New Hampshire Infantry, for nine months.

He marched through the south to New Orleans, La., and when transferred to the Fourth Massachusetts Infantry took part in the assault on Fort Hudson, La. His two brothers, George W. and Maurice H., were killed during the war. His father served in the war of 1812.

Returning from the war Mr. Godfrey was married to Jane Fogg at North Hampton in 1865. She died in 1881, and three years later
Mr. Godfrey married his present wife,
Anna C. Tucker of Hampton.

WANTED TO BE SAILOR BOYS
BUT PA SAID NO

Fred Gilley and James Mooney, ages 14 and 15 years respectively, fell into the hands of the police on Thursday on a request made by the parents of the boys. The lads belong to Somerville, Mass., and evidently had an idea of entering the navy, having previously had lots of correspondence with members of the crew of the U. S. S. Marietta at the navy yard.

The navy men had advised the boys to stick to their good home and forget all about getting down on the Mexican gulf to become heroes. The question of enlisting was settled easily when their ages were known and they had no consent of their parents.

They had a small bank account amounting to a dollar or more and while they were taking in the sights of the old city word came from their excited parents to look them up. They were easily located and returned to their cosy homes in the Massachusetts city today.
